CCA Safes, Storage, and Suggestions

November 7, 2011

We had some really great feedback from our initial newsletter last month, so we're delving deeper this month. We've added a youtube video on the subject of Safes and Secure Storage. After learning of so many burglaries, break-ins, and robberies it is important we help provide some perspective on what the industry has to offer. Between mobile storage, bedside vaults, and large fire-lined safes, we have you covered for your needs. Click below to watch the video.

The only way to really, really, train others at peak levels consistently is to be very well practiced. This portion of the equation our trainers have well in hand. The other thing many don't consider is the ongoing education involved. CCA trainers build weeks and weeks of top tier training into the schedule for customers, but just as important are the weeks of training we take as well. Recently Rick and Romper were able to take one of the TMACS courses taught by Pat McNamara. Continual education is paramount when seeking to teach at the levels our customers expect from at CCA. To the right you'll see both our trainers accepting top of the class honors in both the rifle and pistol portions of the training. Winter in Iowa will bring more hand-to-hand combat training, self defense weapon training for both men and women, as well as edged CCA's Training Director, Rick Largesse, will be auditioning for Television's "Top Shot" series. Yes, you read correctly... At a minimum the audition video should be entertaining and a lot of fun to make, but we'd gladly accept your support and best wishes as he throws his hat in the ring among the nation's best.
